for the present. The New York Bulletin of Saturday has this to say about the market:

On pretty much all grades of wool the feeling continues tame and uncertain, and a general expression of dissatisfaction may be noted. All views have been modified since the opening of the month, not only on the Eastern markets, but at primary points, with the giving way even greater than hoped for by many of the most positive "bears;" but as yet there is a failure to draw out the demand expected, and business drags all around. Manufacturers' present wants are small, and none are willing to operate against what they may require in the fature, while speculative feeling seems to be entirely dead among dealers, etc., with, indeed, supplies held for investment more likely to be thrown over at any moment than added to. The goods trade does not appear quite so promising as last week, and this further detracts from the strength of the market. Advices from the interior are quite conflicting, but in general seems to show that producers are not yet prepared to accept the bids making, and buyers are standing off or withdrawing altogether.

"The writers of these lines, while travling West a few days ago, fell in with General Garfield, of Ohio, on the cars, and had a long and interesting conversation with him on the leading topics of the day "The future of our country," said the

"The fature of our country," said the General, "is a great problem, and, for that matter, so is the fature of Europe and of the whole world. This reminds me," he went on to say, "of a conversation I had with a very intelligent gentleman in New York City a few days ago. He had just returned from Europe, where he had been traveling for two years, and was in a despondent state of mind over the impressions he had received while abroad. He detailed these impressions at length to me spondent state of mind over the impressions he had received while abroad. He detailed these impressions at length to me and in a way that was indeed well calculated to make a systematic impression. It was the prevailing impression among very many of the thinking men of Europe that society there was being undermined by certamiyreresistable influences. In the first place, it was honeycombed by widespread and still wider spreading influence. The Christian religion is no longer a supreme influence over the minds and consciences of the masses. The leaders of thought, the scholars of England, France and Germany, have popularized unbelief, and in France it has passed into a current remark that only women and children are any longer to be seen at church.

"In the second place, there is great rest lessness among the masses in regard to the inequalities of society. Why should the few be so very rich and the many so very poor? is the burden of their inquiry and also of their conversition one. very poor? is the burden of their inquiry and also of their conversation one with another. This undertone of discontent is and also of their conversation out white another. This undertone of discontent is visibly growing, and is finding expression through channels that are unsettling the foundation stenes of the whole social fabric in Europe. Socialism in Germany, Nihilism in Russia, Communism in France, and Chartism in England were all at work, and the masses were being leavened with these principles. Their aversion to kingcraft and priestcraft borders upon revolution. The whole of Europe is volcanic at this time. Immense standing armies are all that repress the outburst. But while they repress its they afford the grievance on which revolution grows and spreads, and becomes more and more irresistible for the final reckoning. It is believed by many of the most sugacious minds that many of the most sagacious minds that the day of upheaval is not far off. "But this is not all," said General Gar The Baltimore and Ohio will, in October, take charge of all the sleeping cars run over its lines. At that date the contract with the Pullman company expires, and it has ordered twenty sleeping cars built at its shops to be ready October 1.

The emigrants are coming in fast, but there is room for all. of the Chinese military establishment.
All we see or know of what is going on in China is on the shore edges. It is believed that the skeleton for an army of 20,000, 000 aiready exists. It is believed, further,
that the idea of conquest has once again taken possession of the Chinese mind, and that the great Buddhistic family of Asiatic races can be leagued for not only a wholesale raid upon Europe, but also for a descent upon the Pacific coast of the United States. Such a movement means the possible wiping out of Caucasian civilization. England has mobilized these Asiatics as a defense against Russia's ambition in the East; but, as Count Schouvaloff said in the Berlin conference, what if the Asiatics, taught the art of war, should, like the irresistible Turks, once again look down upon their banners the legion, "We come, we see, we conquer."

The following report of a conversation with General Garfield was published in the Post of December 7, 1878, copied from the Wheeling (W. Vs.) INTELLIGENCER. It should effectually set at rest all doubts as to the soundness of his views on the Chinese question:

that in the short period of one minured years.

Can not the people of West Virginia be made to feel the facts of the situation? Is there any cabalistic meaning in the word Democracy? Do the partisans of that theory propose any measures for public benefit? Can any change be made in our measures of government that will make the people more prosperous and equal? If not, ought not the people of the State to cast their votes with those who made it a State, when by so doing they will show immigrants from other nations, and capital and enterprise from our own Northern States that they are in sympathy with the progress of the age. This alone would make millions of difference in the productive worth of your State.

I see one or two of the Democratic papers call Mr. Garfield the "tow line candidate." It shows the animus of the party as did "log cabin and hard cider."
